How many Americans do we have in here tonight?
(the crowd cheers)

In the days following september 11th last year everybody that was a poet or a writer or a song writer of any kind Had a reason to write some words down or thoughts down on a peice of paper and i was no diffirent thats what you do when i do and my father served in the army in the 50s he lost his right eye in a training combat mission he came home he put a flag up on the farm i was raised on i lost him six months prior to the attacks on New York City and The United States and that flag that flew out in that yard its flown there everyday he raised me right and he never bitched one time about loseing his eye i never heard him cry about it one time he was glad to go do it and thats why were free today and its our turn to stand on what our fathers and forefathers did for us and make sure we don't let'em down i wrote a song in the following days after september 11th its called The Angry American and i wanna send this out to my father tonight
