

Tommy Page, Time

I remember the day you say goodbye Something was calling you I could read it in your eyes You told me that someday we'd meet again But deep inside i always knew This was the end

I remember those words you claimed as I stood in the pouring rain when i showed my heart would never be the same you told me time will always heal the pain bring the sun and dry the rain we need time to solve and think our problems through you told me time is always on my side to turn the season, change the tide things work out with time if you want them to why can time makes me stop loving you

it wasn't very easy when you left every mention of your name would get me so upset I trapped my emotions deep inside I acted like I didn't care with hopes this would subside

I remember those words you claimed

I try to get you off my mind I live my life just wasting time Hoping that someday I can say the same time will always heal the pain

things work out with time if you want them too

we need time to solve and think our problems through
to turn the season changes the tide things work out with time
loving you
