

Tori Amos, Toodles Mr Jim

Toodles Mr. Jim
you cherry picker
toodles I say, so long hear that your grave's a little warm you stickler sing 'em all your happy song it's today
today Sunday
by your grave.
I say toodles Mr. Jim
you cherry picker
taught me so well
how to spell those red in and
hey
you know she deserved that nose splattered and swattered blood in my hands not a nice day for your little girl but you came to my aid instead.
Now, now it's toodles Mr. Jim
you cherry picker
build that ladder well
teach me just where those boys can climb when they've got a spell.
Toodles Mr. Jim
you are my sweet favourite neighbor of them all of them
girls go to their parties I don't care cause I'm with you still
That was Toodles Mr. Jim.
Mr. Jim died
two weeks ago
and he taught me how to pick cherries and I punched his daughter in the nose because she was mean Mr. Jim was good.
