Tune, Suggestions

Don't side with the ones who choose to be alike You'd better be what you want to be You do not need to blend in They all are just pretending Don't refrain from creating your reality Think freely, independently Oh tell me, aren't you hungry For everyday discovery?

Don't agree with these greedy leeches telling you
To take your place in their open space,
To close the world around you
And do what you're supposed to
And don't believe the Thought Vacuums in your living rooms
Their fake dreams, big screens
Shiny people you look up to
Who tell you what is good for you

I know the places that you're looking for Been there before That's not the way for you to go And I've seen the faces of those greedy whores I know the score That's such a shame for you to crawl

Don't side with the ones who choose to be alike You'd better be what you want to be You do not need to blend in They all are just pretending Don't refrain from creating your reality Think freely, independently Oh tell me, aren't you hungry For everyday discovery?

Free thinking's unacceptable Please return to your cubicle /x2

Don't side with them...