

Tycoon, I Would Love To Change The World

Paroles de Tim RICE - Musique de Michel BERGER

I've been on course since seventeen
It's who you know and where you've been Until it's you they want to know
I learned the rule there are no rules
Except that gentlemen are fools
I order principles to go
There is no secret to success
As long as others want it less
It is no substance it is style
There is no deal that can't be done
Retaliation can be fun
I never walk that extra mile
I have acquired the winner's touch
Of seeming happy with so much
I can be honest if required
I have succeeded and that's all
But then as far as I recall
That's really all that I desired
Oh I would love to change the world
Its many failings one by one
To be the artist, poet, priest
Who feels the battle can be won
And I would love to fall in love
To lose my heart, to lose control
To break away, set rolling free
The darkest secrets of my soul
The darkest secrets of my soul
Oh I would love to change the world
To feel my moment's just begun
To steal a march, to play for keeps
To break the mould, to jump the gun
As no-one else has ever done
And I would love to fall in love
And I give you all of me and more
I long to say that I believe in words I've never used before
In words no lover used before
Oh I would love to change the world
To break away set rolling free
The darkest secrets of my soul
At least the world's not changing me...
