

Unni Wilhelmsen, Everyone's Honesty

I met him in my favorite place well it used to be until I realised how crappy it could make me feel before the doorman rejected me he couldn't handle my virginity but the DJ could just before the music turned life into something good

And he asked for my suggestions needed my directions and even though Dr.Martin don't go well with the lights cleaped tight he asked if I was hugarly, my wallet couldn't speek for me so I gave him my company but something made my try to read his eyes

'course'
I didn't give my self away no mather how close it may seem apart from my presious face
I didn't give my self away
he didn't take anything from me
apart from my presious face
in everyone's honesty

He had money enough to spend but back home he had a girl he had me watching his influense he lied and I listened word for word but calling all the bluffs I heard I thought would cause me more then listening to the decade way of those word

By then I started noteseeing the masculine curve calculating with my young thirst he said he had to see me naked first then for that part in his movie he could end his search he had me in mined
I felt that telling me didn't strike me as beeing the director kind

'course'
no mather how close it may seem
apart from my presious face
I didn't give my self away
he didn't take anything from me

I never wanted to be an actres I can't pretend to cry I couldn't even ask him why he didn't look me in the eyes still my naivity gave it a try behinde his hotelroom-door I could see his real intention rise from across the floor

I wish I'd been younger that it could has passed as a mistake I wish I'd been older old enough to have him shake by the way he was Sweedish he really delt in realastate well he delt enough to see me naked

I should have exposed that with-feathered faker

'course'

no mather how close it may seem
I didn't give my self away
he didn't take anything from me
