Utopia, Jealousy

It wasn't really nothin' I was just trying to have some fun I let my guard down, I just turned 'round Someone slashed me with a razor tongue It's a strange situation I'm not quite sure what it means The one I admire, my simple desire Smothered by a love gone green Must be jealousy, must be 'cause it sounds like Jealousy, must be 'cause it looks like Jealousy, must be 'cause it smells like Jealousy, must be 'cause it feels like Eyes are drilling holes in the back of your head Someone's got the number of your death bed, stepping into Jealousy You're ready for a comeback You're back on your feet again You think you're out from under You hear a crack of thunder Someone stabs you with a poison pen If you try fightin' dirty Just try to keep it clean