

Visions Of Atlantis, Nothing Lasts Forever

Deep inside the eyes of the innocent child
I witness the fire of life burning bright
And suddenly everything's seeming to be said and done

To be as one

Without any word it is speaking to me
I've followed the blind and have unlearned to see
I'm rising from slumber, recalling the dreams I forgot
I wake up

Nothing lasts forever
It all will be gone
Could you still remember
When your life began?
Cherish the moment
Without a regret
Nothing lasts forever
It's never too late

The beard of the old man, all soaked with his tears
Each single one falling for one of his years
Of running the races, in quest of a place, still unknown
It's called home

Nothing lasts forever
It all will be gone
Could you still remember
When your life began?
Cherish the moment
Without a regret
Nothing lasts forever
It's never too late

Nothing lasts forever
It all will be gone
Could you still remember
When your life began?
Cherish the moment
Without a regret
Nothing lasts forever
It's never too late
Nothing lasts forever
It's never too late
