

Walter Egan, Ten Years Ago

By Walter Egan

Remember when we were new and time was our friend
Our pleasure knew no end
But somehow as we grew the years like a haze
Occlude the younger days

But when you look at me that way
All of the years just fall and fade
It could be yesterday

Doesn't it feel like ten years ago
Being together all alone
Seeing ourselves as we did then
Falling in love all over again.

Its funny time brings us pleasure
Time brings us pain
No sunshine without rain
Somewhere our plans stand abandoned
Stillborn in time and dreams get left behind

*But like a scene from yesterday
In a revival here today
Playing the parts that we once played
