Wanda Jackson, Sympathy

SYMPATHY Writers Bobby Bare, Charlie Williams

Oh well, I look in your eyes And what do I see Well, I don't see love All I see is sympathy Before she came along You belonged to me She stole your heart away But yet you stayed in sympathy If you can't say you love me Then don't say you're sorry Please don't you pitty me If I can't have your lovin' I'd rather have nothing I don't want sympathy Do you think I'm blind? Why any fool can see That a-you don't care And all that's there there is a-yeah honey, sympathy If you can't say you love me Then don't say you're sorry Please don't you pitty me If I can't have your lovin' I'd rather have nothing I don't want sympathy Do you think I'm blind? Why any fool can see That a-you don't care And all that's there there is a-yeah, sympathy And it's all for me I don't want sympathy
