

Wanda Jackson, Who Do You Go To

(Who do you go to when you're gone from me)
Who do you go to when you're gone from me
Who hears the sweet things you once said to me
Does she seem to understand what I'm too blind to see
Who do you go to when you're gone from me
Who is this other woman that makes me walk the floor
That causes my sleepless nights because she offers more
Who do you hold near you where I once used to be
Who do you go to when you're gone from me
(steel)
Why are her arms more inviting her lips the ones you kiss
Is she so much more exciting that you'd end our love like this Oh who do you hold near you where I once used to be
Who do you go to when you're gone from me
