

Warhead, Going To The Center

(music: eilen - breitenbach)

(lyrics: eilen)

(arranged by WARHEAD)

the black door of a big neglected building they call it papermill, we call it excess i step inside, cold light shines from a lantern outside, i feel depressed i know this way well, so i walk down to the basement to meet "me", friend the rave-party starts right now i ask for pills, enjoy that thrill going, going to, yo

going to the center
let me arrive
splitting my life

the first song they play, my heart beats fast i feel the tension, escape from within the bassdrum's hammering in my head the dancefloor quakes, it makes me awake the entrance to a better world somewhere in me calls for me, some kind of error i dance a thousand years or more i'm lost in a vision, a lovely terror

let me arrive

a few hours passed by, i'm still dancing it keeps me moving on, the beat and the sound i find myself on the floor as i dance some more it got me down

let me arrive...
