

Waylon Jennings, Year 2000 Minus 25

(Waylon & Willie)

Welcome to the years 2002 minus 25 oh say can you smell her for the smoke
God's till up there laughin' so she's gotta be alive

Who says he can't take a dirty joke

Power is as power does and power slips away it's so easy to abuse

Who'd've thought them Arabs would've bought the USA just to give it to the Jews

Singin' crime still don't pay just like it used to

And you know that time slips away till you die

Well I don't give a damn when I choose to no it don't hurt so bad when you're high

Oh say does the future of the homesick and the brave even matter anymore

There ain't no more reason for them boys to run away than there was to fight before

Would you tell me why the hell we'd try to win back in a war

What we wasted in the last

Might just ain't as righteous as it used to be before when your army's out of gas

Singin' crime still don't pay...

Singin' crime still don't pay...
