

William Fitzsimmons, You Broke My Heart

Fourteen years is all you made it till forgiveness was frustrated I was sorry you missed Christmas do you think that you'll still miss us i was angry when you left us and it showed up on my mattress and i told myself it's better if we only talk in letters

you broke my heart
you broke my heart

did you think about my mother when you shared the same bed cover did you wonder if it changed her when your sons became your stranger when will you admit your lonely since we split apart the family all the pictures are updated all of us are separated

you broke my heart
you broke my heart
you broke my heart
i don't feel it anymore
you broke my heart

you broke my ...
