Within Temptation, Caged

These are the darkest clouds To have surrounded me Now I find my self alone caught in a cage There's no flower to be found in here Not withering Or pale to me Everyone with a friendly face Seems to hide some secret inside

He told me he loved me While he laughed in my face He just led me astray He took my virtue I feel so cold inside Sorrow has frozen my mind

My heart is covered With thoughts entangled How could it ever have felt so real? Is there a place more lonely than I feel within? Could I have seen? Could I have known? I just took it as the truth Everyone with a friendly face Seems to hide some secret inside Always there to remind me To keep me from believing That someone might be there Who'll free me and never ever leave me
