

Xavier Naidoo, I'd Be Waiting

Refrain:

I'd be waiting - waiting for a lifetime

I'm sure

I said I - I'd be waiting - waiting for a lifetime

And more

If that serious alliance lies ahead

Let every necessary word be said

Remembering the blood that we've shed

Keep in mind that there are things we must forget

Refrain

Beware of tragedy left right and center

Don't allow hell on earth to enter

Get rid off all the damage in your head

Remember there's an enemy in your bed

Refrain

The jokes on me for sure

But than wishes and hopes come true for sure

It's you for sure, out of the blue for sure

It's you for your past rich and poor

Towards that hard encore

It's you for your past rich and poor

Towards that hard encore

Refrain

I've walked on the african sands like the kosan

The original man from lands secret

Battled zulu tribes for the passion of word play and swam

Acroos the zambezi but naked

I've seen the sun rise in the east and set in the west

Plotted stars chat and directions for god to manifest

From the peaks of the pyramids I left tags in dark caves

That gave humanity clues on how to star gaze

I've seen a snake shed its skin like the seasons and change

I've seen world rearrange in a flash

Now for this cash they rape our lands strictly for wealth

It's left me stranded in a spiritual realm all by myself

Headed to mecca I stopped and spoke swahill with tribes

Chanted native dialects over the hill I fell vibes

Threw my hands in the sky then beat them hard on a

Drum over the horizon I waited for freedom to come

But the ships just keep sailing and whips just keep cracking

I wonder where I am so I begin back tracking through the

Solomonic dynasty I read the kebra it took my swift

Across the planes like I was riding on a zebra the ashante

Draped me in robes of royalty the shona tribe blessed me

With lyrical ability its beauty infinite and there's just no

Debating when I finally saw all along who's been waiting
