Zakk Wylde, The Color Green

I recall when you once said " There's truth in both of us And all that lies ahead." I take it your tongue, It just got twisted, Or maybe it got tired, Or maybe your memory waved goodbye. When your so-called friends forget your name When your so-called friends, they aint the same When your so-called friends, they've lost their way And they aint what they was just the other day, hey Shoulda listened to what my folks, they had to say Just like a dog that's turned on you, Ain't it funny what the color green will make some people do? How I couldn't see thru your thin disguise, Lord only knows, in the end, such a fool was I Happy-go-lucky that's what I was, and what I hope to be But I feel that I've lost that side of me When your so-called friends forget your name When your so-called friends they aint the same When your so-called friends they've lost their way And they aint what they was just the other day, hey Shoulda listened to what my folks, they had to say Just like a dog that's turned on you, Ain't it funny what the color green will make some people do?
