

1997, The Roads You Can Take

We drove through the rain past the evergreen trees and we rolled just like the water along the veins of its leaves and we traced our memories into the shape of a map inside the palms of our hands bearing the secrets unkept and i dont think i could ever feel this way again you should be an actress because your so good at lying you bring my to my feet and then you leave me here crying if the feelings are gone, then what am i left with its true that we're young but love is said to be ageless the same is said of pain and desire and depression would it make it easier if i made you hate me i only wanna see you happy i only wanna see you smile ill take these pills and shove em down my throat to keep the words "i love you" from escaping to keep me sleeping and keep me quiet, still "i love you" is the only thing i know for sure if its time you need my love, ill give it to you ill give you my love if you say that its time ill tear down the walls youve built up in our lives as the barrier breaks between your heart and mine you would die to forget, but i will live to remind you
