A.F.I., Open Your Eyes

You think I give a shit how I'm seen through your eyes,
I just can't fucking stand the way you always have to criticize.
You have to find something wrong in everything you see,
It seems it's not hard for you to find everything that's wrong with me.
Open your eyes and face the truth
Open your eyes, the real problem's you.
Does it build your self-esteem to look for mistakes in everyone else?
The only answer that I could find is that you're just not happy with yourself.
You, hide something about yourself when you point out everybody else's mistakes.
Those problems that you have are just a little much for you to take.
Open your eyes, and face the truth.
Open your eyes, the real problem's you.