

A Flock Of Seagulls, The More You Live, The More

You never give your heart to a stranger or tell your secrets to a friend you'll put your heart in mortal danger they all desert you in the end the more you live the more you love
or so they say
the more you love the more you go away they say that nothing lasts forever and even true love turns to pain don't trust your feelings to a stranger don't want to go through this again
the more you live the more you love
or so they say
the more you love the more you go away
the more you live the more you love
or so they say
the more you love the more you go away don't ever give your heart to a stranger don't ever think that you can go on you'll put your heart in mortal danger turn around and love is gone
the more you live the more you love
or so they say
the more you love the more you go away
the more you live the more you love
or so they say
the more you love the more you go away
the more you live the more you love
or so they say
the more you love the more you go away