A Million Engines In Neutral, Bigger Brushes, Brig

Did you ever see it coming? Found a quarter on the sidewalk Facing heads up. Doesn't that mean III have luck Coming my way? Now I'm stepping on famous streets And looking at famous buildings And seeing the faces people want to see. Oh, it's easy being invincible. And I know it's hard to believe, But I get off on dwelling on the old place. And I started to paint with bigger brushes, And I started to paint with brighter colors. And feelings of the old place are condensation. Then it rains. Pours out of my brain onto the canvas. And as I sit here on the floor, Painting my so-called picture, I hope it stays together. I hope it stays together. Because I cant say no one told me so