

A Weather, Oh My Stars

Now I know why you're floating away like a white balloon untied today or last night

I like the sounds you when you sleep like you're eating a meal grinding your teeth or just breathing

Oh my stars
Crying, "Oh my stars!"
Oh my stars
Can't strangle anyone who has light in their life

Put your mouth here on my belly Put your fingers in my hair
After mountains there are valleys
We can fall asleep there

Sometimes it's hard thinking about how the plans we made won't happen today or tonight

I'm trying real hard to not make you feel like you've done something wrong by leaving the chips open

(I won't wake you up)
Singing, "Oh my stars"
Oh my stars
Oh my stars
Can't strangle all my friends and their wives and their sons' wives

Put your neck here on your best friend's Hold your mouth up to the phone Use the seatbelt like a bookend
We can sleep when we get home
