Aaron Neville, How Could I Help But Love You

When you hold me close, honey, you're the most, baby, you set my soul on fire Ever since I met you, honey I had to get you, you have been my one desire How could I help but love you with a love so true, you send cold chills down my spine If we would ever part, it wouldn't be your fault, yeah, it would be all mine If you would ever leave me, honey, it sure would grieve me, baby, it would break my heart But I won't let that worry me, this love will always be, it was meant right from the start How could I help but love you, with a love so true, you send cold chills down my spine If we would ever part, it wouldn't be your fault, yeah, it would be all mine When you hold me close, honey, you're the most, baby, you set my soul on fire Ever since I met you, honey, I had to get you, you have been my one desire How could I help but love you, with a love so so true, you send cold chills down my spine If we would ever part