Aaron Pritchett, Lonely's To The Bone

I took her keys, she took a cab She made sure the front door slammed Between the rain and the whiskey the whole thing was still a blur

She caught a plane to San Antone I got that far then the trail went cold Since then I haven't heard a single word from her Then I found out that

All I've lost is all I want And all I'll ever need And I realize the deepest cut Can take a while to bleed Cuz suddenly it hit me that She left me all alone And leaving's only skin deep But lonely's to the bone

The phone would ring once or twice It'd be some number I don't recognize But nobody's ever home when I call it back

Door's unlocked, coffee's on The fire's burnin' but she still ain't home Don't know if I'll ever learn to live with that And I found out that

CHORUS

Oh, it would be so easy if Her memory'd just move on And leaving's only skin deep But lonely's to the bone

Lonely's to the bone x3