

Aaron Sprinkle, Not About To

Shake the water off my hands
And count the moments
That you really understand this disappointment
Tired of always waking up the darkest feeling
Think i&#039;ll open up these blinds and get to seeing

On a day much quieter than this
I will hold your hand and kiss your face
I think it&#039;s imperative you know that I am
Not about to

I know that you could feel
Like a girl on a ferris wheel
Falling down the stairs and then
We could do it again we could to it again...

On a day much quieter than this
I will hold your hand and kiss your face
I think it&#039;s imperative you know that I am
Not about to

When it seems like everything&#039;s fine
Just look up and close your eyes
And remember
It&#039;s imperative you know that I am
Not about to let it go