

Abominant, Enternal Emptyness

winters breeze has frozen my thoughts. crystallized, my lips are parched from the frost. alone in the darkest of worlds. in the day of the grayest light. frozen in the breath from my mouth. beautiful is the pure white snow. a warrior of ice from the north. chilled when i drink the frosty water. solitude is the desolate land. the animals pierce me with their blood red eyes. its sweet sadness, loneliness forever. a king in a glacier palace. my kingdom is vacant and colored white. struggling onward by the grace of God. to find another life. there is no other life. as i close to an end when the wolves catch my human scent. battling for my life. when the wind caresses my mind.
in the land of darkhness i sleep. dreams of happiness, they will confront me. its my world. my eternal emptiness and evermore. lost in the cold, my body is numb i cannot feel. everything thats happened is so unreal. the wolves are gaining on me and theres no place to hide. the eternal emptiness in me shall die.