

Across The Border, Mara

Mara, a gipsy girl, fell in love with a Gorgio and she told him all her dreams but he said I don't fucking care so the young girl turned round went outside in starless night and asked the devil for his help in her despair

Mara, what have you done

So the devil said Alright, sell me the souls of your family I turn them into strings, into a sound book and a bow a fiddle was born and Mara learned to play few magic tunes this time the boy couldn't say No

Mara, what have you done

Do you wanna hear the end of this, sit down and I will tell the devil reappeared after one kiss and carried them both to hell the fiddle was dropped and left behind under a crying moon a boy came along of Mara's kind, picked it up and played this tune

Mara, what have you done

Mara, what have you done.
