Acrostichon, Shelter

misery's pouring down impossible to ignore everywhere he goes his head gets filled with more never mind direction the clouds will always haunt like a knive above his head killing without a sound always on the run knowing he can't hide unable to reach his shelter 'cause his shelter lies inside doomed to walk the earth with this burden on his mind trying to erase the scars no shelter he will find