

Adam Pascal, Precious Little Meltdown

I'll put on the coat you want and pretend to rise above
I'll carry the cross you bare and pretend to feel the love
Tell you you're never alone, you're never alone

You want the answers to be in a tongue you understand
You're looking for someone like me to tell you when to throw your hand
What battles to fight, what causes are right

Then I drown in a precious little meltdown
As you fly, riding the truth just like a butterfly
You're all following me, as I follow you all
Take a look and you'll see, that I lied to you all
'Cause this song is all I have

Take all of the air I breathe and you hold it in your hand
Take all that I want to be, it's more than I can stand
Now I'm never alone, I'm never alone
