

Adam Watts, Beautiful Fall

You've felt this way before
Unwilling walls are built up
A room without a door
But do you want to give up now

I know you wonder who you'd be
Without that whole thing
Turn it around, kill the memory
You can be free

Shut your eyes, jump
Take this beautiful fall
Give it a try, love
And surrender it all
To this beautiful fall
This beautiful fall

You're closer than you think
Your heart's beneath the surface
There's water here to drink
Your thirst can be your compass

Inside you there's a wound that bleeds
When the past is shaken awake
Turn it around, kill the memory
You can be free
