

Adema, Promises

I went outside to take a walk so I could relive memories I thought that you would lend a hand but you were never ever there

it's all in your mind
you do what you wanna do

your promises are all played out you've got your wish
you've worn me down
I've treated you the best I could
I realize that I don't need you

I lost my way when you left home I thought that you could change your life what did I do? why do you lie? you've walked back in, my hands are tied

I've treated you the best I could

you do what you want to do
you do what you want to me

I'm tired, I'm so damn angry with you you're not gonna change I see who you really are

your promises
they're all played out
you're so played out
