

Adema, Somethin' Better

I don't remember when
I didn't do this everyday
Woke up in the afternoon
A ritual I'm validating

No man, I don't have a conscience
Too short of a life to be cautious
This has become so monotonous
Tearing me with apathy
I don't even know your name

You'll surely fade from memory
Something to hold onto when I'm gone
A part of me wants you to stay
Until something better comes along

I looked you up and down
You said hello without a sound
I guess you'll do for now
Logical and calculating

I only want it if it's toxic
Don't give a fuck what the cost is
I've had it all and then lost it
I don't need your sympathy
I don't even know your name

You'll surely fade from memory
Something to hold onto when I'm gone
A part of me wants you to stay
Until something better comes along
(No)

Life take everything I'm given
Can't stand 'cause the room keeps spinnin'
This is the life that I'm living
Starts all over again

Life take everything I'm given
Can't stand 'cause the room keeps spinnin'
This is the life that I'm living
Starts all over again
(No)

You'll surely fade from memory
Something to hold onto when I'm gone
A part of me wants you to stay
Until something better comes along

It can't be wrong
It's coming on way too strong
Until something better comes along

It can't be wrong (I won't be wrong)
It's coming on way too strong
Until something better comes along
