

Adrian Orange, The Real Wild World

no matter what world
may be in your mind
the world that your mind is in
is unknown and wild.

so let's admit that we live in a wild, wild world
where anything is possible and freedom reigns.

do you make a living bringing tests to completion until they're the solution in a few vacant days?
or by doing your best
through each new moment and breath cause life makes life again and again.

why give up so soon
with death before you?
there's so much to learn
if one knows one don't know.
but great expectations
are placed on youth in the face of the exceptions given in our history books.
if this is the real world,
then what was that before?
do you believe in a realer world gated in the clouds where we're all going?

or will you admit that we live
in a wild, wild world?
where is anything is possible
and when we die, we die.
and we're alive
