

AFI, The Spoken Word

We held hands on the last night on earth. Our mouths filled with dust. we kissed in the fields and under

The sky had come crashing down like the news of an intimate suicide. We picked up the shards and

You said, "The cinders are falling like snow." There is poetry in despair, and we sang w