After Midnight Project, Disconnect

Something has to change We're falling further down the drain tonight Flashing lights on billboard signs trashy clubs And careless minds we're alone This filthy floor's a lonely bed While traffics roaring in my head again I disconnect in to a dream In a life that would seem Just to real and overseen I don't need another friend (I'm trying with out you) This could be our very last dance (I breath you I feel you) You stole my eyes at first glance I don't need another friend Maybe we're not as well Put together as we thought Oh well I'm dancing in the pouring rain With a smile and a touch of pain It's Hell I Disconnect I know tried But no one else sees out I'm caving in and I'm giving up What else can I do? I gave everything to you The demons, the gods will have their way I don't need another friend (I'm trying with out you) This could be our very last dance (I breath you I feel you) You stole my eyes at first glance I don't need another friend All I am is wrong And All we had is gone I don't need another friend (I'm dying with out you) This could be our very last dance (I breath you I feel you) You stole my eyes at first glance

And I don't need another friend
