

Agnes Carlsson, Big Blue Wall

Looking at me you never know I m fragile
Looking at me you wouldnt guessed that I might be yeah
Afraid to crush afraid to burn less freely as the last time I let go
All the shadows and suspicions making peach oh you in size
Oh let me in cold thinking twice
I can build the big blue wall no wall in and no way out
Believing out to you to prove me wrong
Im afraid that I could crumble
Once the storms begin to moot
It happens when youve been too blue too long
Theres a place thats flicker in the candles
And I cant breathe I let it deeper for a change
Theres a chance outside this isolation
Ill be free to be hand again
But if I am reluctant and if I begin to cry
Its because I m on cost end to light
I can build the big blue wall no wall in and no way out
Believing out to you to prove me wrong
Im afraid that I could crumble
Once the storms begin to moot
It happens when youve been too blue too long
You can stand in the street light believe in corners that no one knows
Youre not there
You can smile for the camera and make impression and no one knows you dont care
I can build the big blue wall no wall in and no way out
Believing out to you to prove me wrong
Im afraid that I could crumble
Once the storms begin to moot
It happens when youve been too blue too long
