

Alan Parsons, More Lost Without You

There's not a day, I don't think of your name
The state that I'm in, you're completely to blame
No words left to say, turn my dreams all to gray
And I'm more and more lost without you
You're a storm in my head that really blew a new day
A liquid design is what you do to my mind
No words left to say 'cause my mind's gone away
And I'm more and more lost without you
More and more lost without you
I was found and then I totally lost you
Don't know a soul that could ever doubt you
That's why I'm more and more lost without you
More and more
There's not a day, I don't think of your name
The state that I'm in, you're completely to blame
No words left to say, turn my dreams all to gray
And I'm more and more lost without you
More and more lost without you
I was found and then I totally lost you
Don't know a soul that could ever doubt you
That's why I'm more and more lost without you
More and more
You're a storm in my head that really blew a new day
A liquid design is what you do to my mind
No words left to say 'cause my mind's gone away
And I'm more and more lost without you
More and more lost without you
I was found and then I totally lost you
Don't know a soul that could ever doubt you
That's why I'm more and more lost without you
More and more
More and more lost without you
More and more lost without you
More and more
More and more lost without you
I was found and then I totally lost you
Don't know a soul that could ever doubt you
That's why I'm more and more lost without you
More and more
