

Alana C., Today Is the Day

Alana C.
Miscellaneous
Today Is the Day
Today Is The Day

Why does no one care about me,
Why am I just a passing glance?
Behind closed doors I'm a dreamer with no dreams,
Never getting offered a second chance.
Today.

Chours
Today, is the day it all falls apart,
All the things I thought I knew.
But I guess, this new world is too hard for me,
From all the old things I used to say and do.

Today, is the day I change for good,
It's no turning back from here.
But I guess, it's for the best,
Because now, I have nothing left to fear.

Uncared, unfed, too tired to sleep,
People don't even notice who is really me.
With water rising up that's way too deep,
To get away from my troubles I hide and flee.
Today.

Chours

Did you notice that little girl,
One step closer towards the real world?
When she took that step she finally saw,
Horrors, death, destruction, buildings about to fall,
No good anywhere at all.
Today.

Chours

She tried and tried to step on back,
To find a happy place.
To show the world she wasn't ready,
She cried and covered her face.
Today.

Chours