

Albert Hammond, For The Peace Of All Mankind

Albert Hammond

It Never Rains in Southern California

For The Peace Of All Mankind

You turned me on so bad that there was only one thing on my mind

An overnight affair was needed at the time

Hello, goodbye, no searching questions, that was clearly understood

But how was I to know that you would be so good?

For the peace, for the peace, for the peace of all mankind

Will you go away, will you go away, will you vanish from my mind

Will you go away and close the bedroom door

And let everything be as it was before

Too much too soon, too bad it didn't hit me till a week had passed

I might have saved the day if I had acted fast

I looked around in case you'd scribbled down the number secretly

But all you left were fingerprints and memories

For the peace, for the peace, for the peace of all mankind

Will you go away, will you go away, will you vanish from my mind

Will you go away and close the bedroom door

And let everything be as it was before

For the peace, for the peace, for the peace of all mankind

Will you go away, will you go away, will you vanish from my mind

Will you go away and close the bedroom door

And let everything be as it was before

Da-di-da, da-da-di, da-da-di-di-di-di-di

Will you go away, will you go away, will you vanish from my mind

Will you go away and close the bedroom door...