

Alex Parks, Untitled

When i wake up today,
wear my heart on my sleeve,
just to say to you all,
that this my dream

And when you knock me down, it won't matter at all,
taken what i wanted,
and i haven't been here before

put the light on my face, and i'll give you that gaze that you dig for,
you praise all my faults,
is it good enough for you what i do,
what i do,
what i do

wanna know what your thinking, wanna know what you discussed,
when i'm away,
when i'm on paper,
and i'm comin' later

all for you
i don't need anybody,
so put the light on my face,
and i'll give you that gaze that you dig for,
you praise all my faults,
what i do,
what i do,

what i do,
what i do,
what i do,
what i do,
won't ever be for you
