i have reflected the beautiful eyes are spreading on the inside of my heart wearing the uncertain night sky the throne of the moon, the offering of the stars every possible day going down the top of the veil, like glittering while weaving the threads of our memories i am unable to forget the warm touch with the gentleness of our last love without my heart withering up our dream will continue reeling calling my name a lovely whisper

whirling in the inside of your ear falling into the eternal sea the echoing wave, the timbre of a bubble assuming that all of this world's songs have been played like floating to the surface locking up the case of the mother-of-pearl my tears will scatter on the sleeping rainbow with the sadness of our last love my heart will dampen having a fresh start in life in the morning dew if i know of our last love my tears will scatter into the freezing darkness knowing of our last love i will hold onto you and forever more, i will stay by your side what one colour will not fade?
