&lt;/lyrics> coiling around my slender neck are long, invisible fingers reflected in the hand-mirror are the crescent moon and that person's shadow be close to me a little while longer don't forget about me the past and the present are coming together fascinatingly in the country of time

oh, this place, I wonder when it is hollowed out from my pale chest are a smile and hot breath love is said to die in lies even if the world is in a stupid nursery tale come to see me just one more time whisper that you loved me my dreams and memories are being painted with the same paints being mixed together with dirty blood

the time when I was Alice I was probably prettier than anything I had never seen a single stain in the sky

to the final time that I was Alice in the witch's forest I became a lost child, I took injuries, without going under a curse
