&lt;/lyrics&gt;

in the cold of the moonlight, my bones softly freeze below my snow-like heart is a red rose sherbet even the wings of the mayflies creak open towards the sleeping of the stairs when i walk over the splinters of pain one and two, they will spill and melt between the cypress trees, what is shaking is my spirit even in this world, with my gentle eyes i am seeing myself

just for a little bit, just for now let's stop living
if i forgot everything, then i will awaken once more the moonlight, with silver claws, is weaving silk threads weaving and binding what the king rabbit saw someday, it will fall, in the nightmare of my demise since my heart, even like this,

is a fickle case,
i know the heaviness
of one teardrop

just for a little bit, just for now,
forgetting everything,
i am born once more

i am seeing you

just for a little bit, just for now,
forgetting everything,
i am born once more
