

Alien Ant Farm, Flesh And Bone

This moisture slides from my eyes
It glistens, it glistens
There nowhere left to go now
If you teach me, I'll listen
A favorite time for mistakes
In salt lakes, we all shake
Consider me your apprentice
Repentant, yet hesitant
Please show me a sign
Come inside, kneel
Remember who built your home
I built you flesh and bone
This image comes from somewhere
Who is it? Spiritual visit
Coincidence is one thing
Overwhelming, immaculate timing
Everything we had is gone
Something new has come up strong now
I feel that I belong
And I trust you, I love you
Please show me a sign
Come inside, kneel
Remember what you hear
And I'll be still right here
Come inside, kneel
Remember who built your home
I built you flesh and bone
And I'm torn between halos, demons
All these words with cryptic meanings
Separate seasons
All these issues and mixed up feelings
And I have to choose
Everything we had is gone
Something new must come up strong now
I feel that I belong
And I trust you and I love you
Please show me a sign
Come inside, kneel
Remember what you hear
And I'll be still right here
Come inside, kneel
Remember who built your home
I built you flesh and bone
Come inside, look around
I'll lift off the ground
I snapped your ribs made a lover
So you could share each other
Come inside, kneel
Remember