

Alison Krauss, Moments Like This

What a dying world re-defines, the reasons we strive to exist
Refrain control or we're bound to learn the meaning of moments like this Cuz in the peaceful lull, the quiet spell Seduced by the promise of bliss, we soon forget that nothing's happened yet We're living for moments like this

So hold me, whisper gently this is what we live for, how we learn who we are
It defines us, ever reminding us that life never is more precious than this

From the dim light in the greyness, the aim of the soul tends to miss but then the clouds catch fire and the oceans pitch we're made for the moments like this

So hold me, whisper gently that there's nothing to fear
You'll always be near, to remind me, to stand behind me
Although life can be rough we can never give up

It's in our power to face the storm with all its fury and madness
The flash of thunder will be harnessed with the longing and sadness
The clouds will grey.

Hold me. Whisper gently this is what we live for, how we learn how we are
It defines us, ever reminding us that life never is more precious than this Hold me. Whisper gently that there's nothing to fear, You'll always be near, to remind me, stand behind me
Although life can be rough we can never give up.