Alison Moyet, Love Resurrection

What can I do to make light of this dull dull day What switch can I pull to illuminate the way Show me one direction I will not question again For a warm injection Is all I need to calm the pain

We all need a love resurrection Just a little divine intervention We all need a love resurrection Just a little divine intervention

What seed must I sow to replenish this barren land Teach me to harvest I want you to grow in my hand Lets be optimistic, lets say that we won't toil in vain If we pull together we'll never fall apart again

We all need a love resurrection Just a little divine intervention We all need a love resurrection Just a little divine intervention

Show me one direction I will not question again For a warm injection Is all I need to calm the pain
