

All Shall Perish, Divine Illusion

You must fear your maker or else you'll plummet down
For your salvation blindly follow them into his words
We'll purify you, you'll suffer no pain within his bands
Just bow your head, show your lament, and soon you'll understand
We are the stations, we are the strict foundation
We make them follow as you serve a life negotiated
And you will fall if our rules will not be followed
We'll turn our backs and disregard this message we've been given
At what point did you begin to believe that all your pain disappears with just a prayer
That your salvation was something handed out as easy as the pamphlets you receive
We are no different, we could be self sufficient
This life could simply be the answer to all of our questions
And you will fall if your heart you will not follow
There is no hope for anyone that takes the pill they're given
In the end you will see they were wrong
You will cease to be, with no one around
No deity will wash away the pain of existence
In the end you will see they were wrong
You will cease to be, with no one around
Your god can't save you
Your god can't save you
No one knows what is at the end
If there is an end
This is the only truth you will ever expose....
Your god can't save you
Your god can't save you
Your god can't save you
Your god can't save you
