

Allison Crowe, Northern Lights

The Northern Lights took me off guard knocked me over and lifted me up and through the shadow of a meteor I saw your face
And yes I stood on the other side of the world but I took the Northern Lights home to you

I fall into habits that I've carried So many years and when I fall
I seem to pick them up And I don't know when or where But this isn't me, this visionary That can barely see
And yes I stood on the other side of the world
but I took the Northern lights home to you
So much water floods my face I am choking on words that I finally have the courage to say At the wrong time in the wrong place
And there's no one here to hear me
I just scream into an empty room
And yes I stood on the other side of the world
but I took the Northern Lights home to you Everything falls and I will be the last one standing yes I will hold fast because everything here begins again Yes I stood on the other side of the world and took the Northern Lights home to you and took the Northern Lights home to you
