

Allison Crowe, Skeletons and Spirits

Words & Music by Allison Crowe

Take your sympathy and shove it as for the pain, well, I love it I'll eat your words
I'll devour your soul
I will laugh like a lemur as you crawl back into your hole I won't deny you, but I'll pay you no heed
And, if you keep stabbing me, I will probably bleed But, I'll pretend I'm a cloud and my rain will surround you And if you keep hurting me I'll eventually drown you And, yes I know
I'm a little bit off
But, you, you can't leave, you can't open the door you think you're unique but I've seen you before so run, run away from the fires that burn you will do this again and again but you will never learn So keep looking down as you crush me keep smiling 'cause I will get up and there's no denying that I am one of your punching clowns you can keep on striking but you can't keep me down You always think that you are fearless and right but I think that you are afraid in the night of the ghosts, of the spirits that crawl into your head of the skeletons that'll haunt you until you're dead
but, now, you can't leave, you can't open the door
you think you're unique but I've seen you before
so run, run away from the fires that burn you will do this again and again and again and again
you think you're unique but I've seen it all before so run, run away from the fires that burn
you will never learn
you will never learn
