

ALO, Roses And Clover

Moon light shining through the trees
An iridescent glow
Call it your destiny
But nobody really knows

It's a slight variation
On the story of how things start
Roses and clover start growing
And they wrap around your heart

Well there's no use pretending
That it's just gonna go away
Roses and clover start growing
And they wrap around your brain

Going down, down, down, down, down
Where the roses and clover grow

Heart beats a nervous tension
Just like in their dreams
But all this feels way too real
To be just what it seems
And the air is getting heavy
And her smile makes him crazed
And he fears that he'll just disappear
And slide into this haze

Going down, down, down, down, down
Where the roses and clover grow

She's waiting in the garden, don't you know